Heating and Ventilating Kit with thermometer, probe and case

The N9002 is an electronic differential thermometer with eight thermocouple compatibility for maximum versatility in industrial, heating, ventilating, air conditioning and refrigeration.

The N9002 is compatible with 8 thermocouple types - K, N, T, J, R, S, E and B.

As well as an overall temperature measurement capability ranging from  $-200^{\circ}\text{C}$  to  $+1820^{\circ}\text{C}$ , it allows users to select the best thermocouple for the application.

Twin sub-miniature probe connectors also allow differential temperatures to be measured, with readings displayed in  $^{\circ}\text{C}$ ,  $^{\circ}\text{F}$  or K. It can also be used as a conventional thermometer when a single probe is connected. Comark's IP67 rated premium case adds to the instrument's versatility.
